Digging out - again

Second (and hopefully last) round of heavy snow sends residents into snow removal mode again

A second winter storm in as many weeks left area residents reeling again last week, digging out from under yet another several inches of snow and ice.

Snowfall measurements between four and six inches were reported in the county from the storm that moved through the area late last Wednesday and early Thursday.

Schools and many businesses remained closed following the latest round of winter weather.

The latest storm brought out a wide variety of methods to clear the snow, including the use of a rarely seen piece of equipment in this part of the country, a snow blower, top photo, that was being used by Clinton County maintenance crew member William Johnson to clear the parking area around the courthouse.

Fiscal court raises tax rate

Occupational fee to increase to 1.25 percent

The new occupational license fee, which raises the tax rate per $100 earned by employees that work in the county is now a done deal with the passage of the amended ordinance last Thursday by Clinton Fiscal Court. (A separate article on the court meeting can be found beginning on page 1.)

Prior to the special call meeting of the court Thursday, March 5, a public hearing was held on the occupational tax issue and only a few local residents braved the late winter snow storm and below freezing temperatures to attend the session, which allowed citizens to voice their opinions on the proposed new rates prior to a final vote being taken.

There was some verbal See TAX, page 3

Fiscal court members listened as Jim Pennycuff addressed the court last Thursday afternoon during a one-hour long public hearing that was designed to solicit comments regarding a proposed increase in the rate of the occupational tax. During the meeting that followed the hearing, the court voted 4-2 to increase the tax rate to 1.25 percent.

Backhoe purchase, Wellness Center problems also addressed at fiscal court meeting

Clinton County Fiscal Court, following a public hearing last Thursday afternoon, March 5, approved final reading of the Occupational License Fee amended ordinance, voted to purchase a backhoe for the road department and opted to use LGEA funds to assist the Wellness Center in purchasing a new heating system for the facility's pool. All court members were present for the 50-minute special call meeting.

* Occupational Tax Ordinance: Prior to voting on the amended ordinance raising the license fee tax from .75 to $1.25 per $100 earned, Magistrate Ricky Craig said he would like to do some cutting (in spending). Magistrate Terry Buster said that if the measure passed and the county was able to close the jail, they may be able to drop the tax back to the previous rate, adding it (raising the rate) is something we have to do. He added that the state is considering raising the minimum wage in Kentucky to $10 per hour and said if that happened, the county would have to pay their employees that amount regardless.

The motion to approve second and final reading of the ordinance, which will become effective after publication, was made by Magistrate Hershell Key, seconded by Magistrate Johnny Russell and again passed by the same previous votes of 4-2, with Magistrates Key and Russell along with Patty Guinn and Buster voting yes and Magistrates Craig and Mickey Riddle voting no.

* Wellness Center: At the court's previous meeting, they had agreed to allow the Wellness Center board to attempt to get a zero percent loan to replace the boiler that heats the facility's swimming pool, in the county's name, with the Wellness Center to repay for the system with monthly payments.

Park board sets in motion final step to bringing new playground equipment to Mountain View

After literally a few years of discussions, fundraising, and planning, the Recreation Park Board, thanks to the Healthy Hometown Coalition and many others, are one step closer to finally seeing new playground equipment put in place at Mountain View Park just in time for the busy spring and summer seasons.

The Recreation Park Board's executive committee, meeting Monday afternoon, March 9 at the Board of Education's Central Office with five of six members on hand, approved the bid packet for the equipment and voted to advertise for bids for playground equipment. The advertisement for bids, which will be published two weeks and opened at the next Healthy Hometown Coalition meeting, appears in the legal section of this week's Clinton County News.

The park board has been working on the project for some time, including holding fundraisers and taking community and individual donations to help purchase new and much needed playground equipment and last year received a major boost that put them over the top when the Healthy Hometown Coalition was able to offer grant funds to be used toward the project.

Among those larger grants and donations included funds from and grants secured by the Clinton County Community Coalition as well as a grant from Cumberland Family Medical.

The proposal, or bid packet, was put together with specifications for bidders by Park Director Bobby Reneau and board secretary and Healthy Hometown Coalition member Paula Little and was approved by the park board executive committee at its first meeting.

The proposal calls for bids to be received by the Healthy Hometown Coalition by Monday, March 23 at 12 noon Central Time and for the bids to be submitted to the Clinton County Board of Education office.

City council hears update on nuisance ordinance

Albany City Council held a short regular session last Tuesday evening at city hall with all members present and a brief business agenda.

After approving minutes for the February meeting, Mayor Nicky Smith updated the council on the proposed nuisance ordinance that is being drawn up for the city.

Smith said he was continuing to compile information and was also considering adding something in the ordinance that may deal with the problems surrounding dogs roaming streets that are not on a leash. He said there have been some recent complaints about those type dogs disturbing residents.

The council then voted to approve an inter-local agreement with the Workforce Investment Area (WIA), which is administered through the Lake Cumberland Area Development District and assists with helping find work for people in the 10-county AD District area, including Clinton County.

The mayor and council members also thanked all city employees, especially the street and water departments, for their hard work during the most recent winter storms that hit the area, and also thanked the county for their assistance with supplying some additional salt and other types of assistance.

The mayor noted that since a disaster had been declared at all levels during the storm event, including local, state and federal, the city may be in line for some assistance in the future from the state or federal government to assist in the cleanup costs.

The council also discussed some minor water and street issues and congratulated both the Clinton County Lady Bulldogs and Bulldogs on their successful 2014-15 basketball seasons.

The next regular meeting of Albany City Council is scheduled for Tuesday, April 7 at 5 p.m. at city hall and is open to the public.

Childhood obesity and high blood pressure

Source: Medical News Today

A new large study reported in the American Journal of Hypertension shows a strong link between body mass index in teenagers and blood pressure. The researchers say the findings highlight the worrying implications of the rapidly growing global problem of teen obesity. Teen obesity is a rising problem in many parts of the world. In the US, 17 percent of youth are obese.

There is a lot of evidence linking obesity to high blood pressure.

The results show a much stronger tie between BMI and blood pressure in females than in males. Obese children are more likely to become obese adults, and are consequently more at risk for adult health problems such as heart disease, type 2 diabetes, stroke, numerous types of cancer and osteoarthritis.

Healthy Hometown is working toward a "healthy" Clinton County.

Kentucky State Police Post 15 February activity report

During the month of February 2015, there were 19 traffic accidents investigated by the State Police working in the Post 15 area in the 11 counties of Adair, Casey, Clinton, Cumberland, Green, Marion, Metcalfe, Monroe, Russell, Taylor and Washington.

There was one fatal collision during the month of February in the Post 15 area.

Rhonda Yates, age 51 of Danville KY was killed on 02/18/15 in Washington Co., KY.

This brings our yearly fatality count to seven compared with four through this same period in 2014.

Statewide fatality count stands at 95 compared with 85 through this same period in 2014.

During the month of February 2015, there were 702 citations written, 42 courtesy notices written, 818 vehicles inspected, 494 complaints answered, 161 motorists assisted, 48 criminal cases opened and 102 criminal arrests made.

Snow removal took on many forms last week during the second winter storm that dumped several inches of snow on Albany and Clinton County, including the use of tractors and blades, which was the method of choice used by Bozie York on Thursday as he cleared the parking lot adjacent to Lay-Simpson Furniture on Cross Street.

Friday morning's sub-freezing air temperatures, coupled with a fog-mist that was experienced in the area in the early morning hours, produced several pretty scenes across Albany and Clinton County that lasted for a few hours until ice covered trees experienced melting. This scene was photographed on Hwy. 639 near the Mullins and Burchett farms.

Tax

opposition to the increase on the occupational tax, but during the hour-long hearing, a lot of questions were put forth, as well as several opinions and much discussion on the county's financial outlook and how revenues could be raised or how the county could save money in general.

Former road supervisor Jim Penneycuff was among the residents--and the first up--to speak, saying he didn't like tax increases but understood the necessity for it. He further said he didn't like the county "shoveling money" into accounts, adding the county should try and see that is stopped. He said allocated money should be used for that purpose.

Judge/Executive Richard Armstrong noted it was legal to switch general fund money to different accounts and Treasurer Dallas Sidwell also noted it was a standard use, noting the annual fiscal year budget could be amended throughout the year at any time, adding "if we (county) were flushed with money, we wouldn't have to do it (make transfers from one account to another to meet expenses.)"

What concerned most residents that were in attendance was the collection rate of the current occupational tax, with most inferring it wasn't fair that most people--individuals and businesses--paid the tax while others who are obligated to do so weren't paying. At one point, one resident even said, "I didn't know the tax was voluntary."

Judge Armstrong explained, however, that since he began office, and even some months before, himself and Tax Administrator Virginia Conner, who was not present for the hearing, were working hard to get the collection rate up, noting they were also going back to try to "pick up" what is owed.

Armstrong said there had been a few thousand letters sent and also said many people have come in to begin paying the occupational fee.

Al Gibson, owner of Gibson Printing Company and the Clinton County News, was in opposition to the tax increase, stating he felt all other options (such as collecting all the current fees from persons responsible for paying) should be exhausted before the additional tax is imposed.

The judge/executive again noted the cost of operating the EMS (ambulance service) and jail, saying the county needed to see what kind of revenue would be coming in and noted that since Amedysis has been billing for the ambulance service, they were now at a 92 percent collection rate. He also noted the occupational license fee collections had risen from as low as around 40 percent to close to a current 80 percent.

Armstrong also estimated the county was putting in hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to help fund the ambulance service and jail.

There was also questions once again about whether or not closing the jail would help the county financially, as those discussions were held several months ago during the previous administration.

Magistrate Mickey Riddle said that by closing the jail and transporting inmates to nearby facilities could cut the jail budget in half.

Armstrong, however, noted that closing the jail would cost about 17 jobs (the current total of jail employees) and also noted the cost of transportation to other counties. In the end, however, he did leave open the options to explore all possibilities for saving the county money.

One resident also suggested a possible "wheel tax" which some other area counties in both Kentucky and Tennessee have in place, putting a set fee on all workers where everybody, not just some, would have to pay the same share.

More discussion centered around the jail, including collecting booking from inmates. Judge Armstrong noted on that issue that if it were up to him, if an inmate came before the (circuit or district) judge and owed $2,000 in booking fees, they would either pay the fee or go back to jail.

There was also talk about using inmates for work release programs.

Discussion again switched back to the problem most residents felt should be fixed--collecting the fee from everyone who under the ordinance--is supposed to pay and ways of keeping track of those who are or aren't paying. It was noted that there are fines and fees that the county attorney's office can deal with in collecting current and back taxes--up to five years.

Armstrong also suggested to those on hand that if they knew of someone not paying the fees, they should give the county judge's offices the names.

County Attorney Michael Rains supplied the NEWS with a copy of the ordinance and specifically noted the "penalty" section under KRS 67.790, which reads for the most part:

(1) A business entity subject to tax on net profits may be subject to a penalty equal to five percent (5 percent) of the tax due for each calendar month or fraction thereof if the business entity: (a) Fails to file any return or report on or before the due date prescribed for filing or as extended by the (county). (b) Fails to pay the tax computed on the return or report before the due date prescribed for payment. The total penalty levied pursuant to this subsection shall not exceed 25 percent of the total tax due; however, the penalty shall not be less than $25.

(2) Every employer who fails to file a return or pay the tax on or before the date prescribed... may be subject to a penalty in the amount equal to five percent of the tax due for each calendar month or fraction thereof. The total penalty levied pursuant to this subsection shall not exceed 25 percent of the total due; however, the penalty shall not be less than $25.

(3) In addition to the penalties prescribed in this section, any business entity or employer shall pay, as part of the tax, an amount equal to 12 percent per annum simple interest on the tax shown due, but not previously paid, from the time the tax was due until the tax is paid. A fraction of a month is counted as an entire month.

(4) Every tax imposed by this ordinance, and all increases, interest, and penalties thereon, shall become, from the time the tax is due and payable, a personal debt of the taxpayer to the (county).

(5) The (county) may enforce the collection of the occupational tax due under section (3) of this ordinance and any fees, penalties, and interest as provided in subsections 1-4 by civil action in a court of appropriate jurisdiction. To the extent authorized by law, the (county) shall be entitled to recover all court costs and reasonable attorney fees incurred by it in enforcing any provision of this ordinance.

(6) In addition to the penalties prescribed in this section, any person, business entity or employer who willfully fails to make a return, willfully makes a false return, or who willfully fails to pay taxes owing or collected, with the intent to evade payment of the tax or amount collected, or any part thereof, shall be guilty of a Class A misdemeanor.

(7) Any person who willfully aids or assists in, or procures, counsels, or advises the preparation or presentation under, or in connection with, any matter arising under this ordinance of a return, affidavit, or other document, which is fraudulent or is false as to any material matter, whether or not the falsity or fraud is with the knowledge or consent of the person authorized to present the return, affidavit, claim, or inducement, shall be guilty of a Class A misdemeanor.

ing to the bid specifications, is not to exceed $75,000.

The specifications indicate that "The Clinton County Healthy Hometown Coalition desires to purchase a themed playground structure that is eye-catching, aesthetically pleasing, unique, and safe for children," and also lists several components desired, including for recommended ages of 5-12 years, with a child capacity of 60 or more among several other criteria.

The specifications also list border material criteria and manufacturer requirements.

Little noted that several different organizations and individuals have been involved in helping raise funds to make the playground project successful and Reneau said he expected to receive up to five or six bids on the playground equipment, which will include delivery and installation.

The old, outdated playground equipment will be removed once new equipment is purchased.

The park board would like to thank everyone who helped in any way in making the project a reality.

The committee also briefly discussed concession sales during the upcoming Little League season and the possibility of hosting a softball tournament for adults/kids later in the year, as well as approving the monthly treasurer's report.

The executive committee was formed last December by the full park board as a means of allowing business to be conducted in the event a quorum could not be gathered, or as in the case of last month when the regular meeting was cancelled due to inclement weather.

The next regular meeting of the full Recreation Park Board is scheduled for Thursday, March 26 at 6 p.m. at the park and is open to the general public.

Making Reservations

1 Peter 3-20, Which sometime were disobedient, when once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, where in few, that is, eight souls were saved by water.
Noah made reservations by building an ark, thus saving his three sons and their wives, himself and his wife. Everyone else through their lust for sin made reservations to die in the flood.
Jude 2-4, For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment.
Everyone please know, regardless of what the preachers of hypocrisy says, the wages of sin is death, when playing with sin you are making reservations to burn in the eternal flames of hell.
2 Peter 2-9, The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptation, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished.
2 Peter 3-7, But the heavens and the earth, which are now, but the same world are kept in store reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.
Many preachers today are failing to lead their flock away from the perversions of the world that delivers mass destruction to church going people.
Next week, weapons of mass destruction.

Thank you for reading Hidden Treasures, by Mike Willen.
Sincerely with love!

“He Got Saved On The Phone”

Let's Go Soul Winning
By the late Dr. Jack Hyles

I hold in my hand today a copy of a church bulletin from the Hamilton Acres Baptist Church of Fairbanks, Alaska. Here is an article that will not mean much to you, but it does to me. It reads as follows:
“We were mighty proud spiritual parents to learn that one of your young Air Force men, Brother Dennis Buffington, was one of the 12 men in the entire Air Force selected to fill a particular job at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C. However, we rejoiced when he turned it down, for he had surrendered his life to the Lord and to the Gospel ministry. Only 12 men in the entire Air Force were chosen for this honor. He will soon take a discharge to enter Hyles-Anderson College in Hammond, Indiana, to begin his preparation for service for the Lord. Congratulations, Dennis, for a very courageous decision.”
When I read this little bulletin, my mind wandered back to one Sunday night when one of our finest young ladies came in the church auditorium with a boy friend. He was a visitor. (That always worries me. When I don't know who the fellows are, I worry about our girls. I want them to get good husbands and go with good boys.) I wondered who she had. Marguerite Tunis was her name. I hoped he was a good kid. I worried and fretted. (I somehow have the idea that if they don't come to First Baptist, they must not be very good. That's not true, but I worry.) Soon I found he was unsaved, and I worried even more. I remember one night I preached to him and prayed for him. He didn't come forward to receive Christ. Late that evening at the parsonage the telephone rang, and I answered. The voice at the other end of the line said, “This is Dennis Buffington. Brother Hyles, I'm about to die. I was in the service tonight. God spoke to my heart but I didn't get saved. What can I do now?”
I said, “Dennis, listen carefully.” I told him the old Roman Road plan of salvation: Romans 3:10, “There is none righteous, no, not one.” Romans 3:23, “For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God.” Romans 5:12, “Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, or that all have sinned.” Romans 5:8, “But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.” All of this I told him on the telephone. I said, “Now Dennis, bow your head and pray this prayer, Father be merciful to me a sinner and save my soul. I do now receive Jesus Christ as my personal Saviour.” I said, “Dennis, are you willing to receive Him now?”
He said, “Yes, I am.” He prayed that prayer, and on the telephone he was saved.

THANK YOU

Thank you very much to everyone who sent cards, words of encouragement, prayers, and food to Carol and myself while I recovered from recent hip surgery. The overall support and kindness of everyone was greatly appreciated and will be remembered.

A very special thanks to Allen Smith, Larry Conner, and Paul Conner for everything they did to make the rehab time easier and a little bit more normal.

Thanks to Luke Boils for doing a wonderful job taking care of my "girls" during this rough weather time. Let's all hope spring is near.

And of course a special thanks to my wonderful wife for her patience and understanding as I took on the role of patient for a couple of weeks.

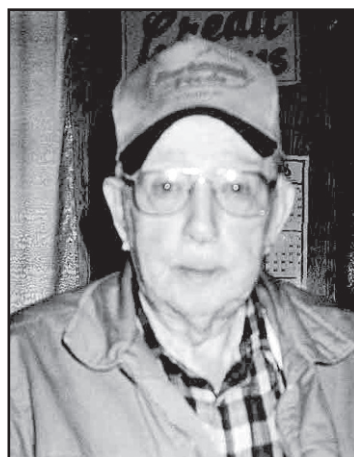

Thanks again to everyone for everything.

WAYNE CO. OUTLOOK Monticello

A new system manager for a local utility provider was named last week.

Monticello Utility Commission (MUC) members voted at a special call meeting last Thursday to hire Scott Upchurch as the new MUC system manager.

Member Robert Wixson made the motion to hire Upchurch, while Juanita Allen seconded the motion.

Commission member Alvin Sexton abstained from the vote, while members James Peters was absent from the meeting.

A yearly salary of $55,000 comes with the position.

Upchurch, a Monticello native, was one of ten applicants and lives and works in Lexington.

Commission members were left searching for a replacement after outgoing system manager Gene Jones announced his retirement at last month's MUC meeting having served in the role for eight years.

"I'm retiring at the end of March. I've been thinking about it since August," Jones told the commission at the beginning of the month.

Jones said he felt the time had come for him to step down as system manager so he could travel and do other things with his wife, as well as enjoy time with his family.

Upchurch takes the reigns two weeks before the end of March, when Jones' retirement takes effect.

Monticello Mayor Jeffrey Edwards was selected to serve as chairman of the newly formed Parks and Recreation Committee. The group met Tuesday, February 24 and selected its leadership.

This marked the first time the full committee met, as the group was joined by seventh member Melinda Wilson.

Charlie Peters was selected to serve as secretary-treasurer for the committee.

The committee decided to set its regular meeting date for the first Thursday of each month at the ASPIRE Center.

The next order of business for the committee will be hiring a Parks and Recreation Director. They began accepting resumes for the position last week. The deadline to submit resumes was March 5.

The committee was to have held its regular monthly meeting that evening to begin screening applications that it had received.

The entire committee will be involved in the interview process, according to the discussion held during last week's meeting.

In case you're concerned about the fate of duskytail darters, the devilish little minnows that almost kept Lake Cumberland lower than normal last summer, please stop worrying.

A sampling of the endangered minnows is doing nicely in an environment controlled atmosphere at Conservation Fisheries Inc. in Knoxville, waiting for the arrival of spring to trigger thoughts of love.

J.R. Shute, co-director of Conservation Fisheries, said about two dozen pairs of duskytail darters are in a holding condition over winter at the facility.

The water in which the dusky darters swim is kept "...as close as we can to the outside temperature...now about 40 degrees," Shute said.

Lighting for the minnows is controlled to match the length of days. As days get longer, lighting and food are increased, Shute related. Duskytail darters normally breed in May and longer light and more food will trigger spawning, he said.

"They (duskytail darters) are interesting and rare little fishes...I think they appreciate our protection," Shute remarked.

Adult duskytail darters are about 2 1/2 inches long. Baby darters reach adult size in about a year. Shute said the progeny, when about three-quarters of an inch long, will be moved to Wolf Creek Dam National Fish Hatchery for safekeeping.

There are not many darters left, but the few that live in fast-moving riffles in the Big South Fork of the Cumberland River drew the wrath of Lake Cumberland country early in 2014 when existence of the rare minnow messed with the lake level.

Lake Cumberland was held about 40 feet below normal for seven years to repair leaky Wolf Creek Dam. While the lake was low, a five-mile section of the Big South Fork, normally backed up by the lake, returned to its normal state and duskytail darters moved downstream and took up habitat.

Repairs on Wolf Creek Dam were completed in March 2013, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers allowed the lake to rise 20 feet during the 2013 vacation season. The lake was supposed to return to normal depths this past summer.

Tourism interests in the Lake Cumberland region were ready to welcome the Ohio Navy to return in force for Summer 2014. However, mid-January 2014, about three months ahead of the tourist season, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers declared the newly discovered habitats of duskytail darters in the Big South Fork must be protected and the lake would remain at 2013 levels last summer.

The announcement created a fire storm of protests from tourism interests. The controversy reached Congress, and Senators Mitch McConnell and Rand Paul, both of Kentucky, Senator Lamar Alexander of Tennessee and Somerset's Congressman Hal Rogers met with heads of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in McConnell's Washington office and hammered out a quick solution to the problem. The quick solution was to seine some of the duskytail darters of the Big South Fork River for propagating and safekeeping and let the lake return to normal levels.

When captured out of the Big South Fork, the minnows were taken to Conservation Fisheries, a nonprofit organization dedicated to the conservation and recovery of aquatic biodiversity and ecosystems in the Southeastern U.S. There, the darters hopefully will breed and produce more duskytail darters.

Duskytail darters are presently known in only four streams-Little River in Blount County, Tennessee; Citico Creek, Monroe County, Tennessee; Big South Fork of the Cumberland River in McCreary County, Ky.; and Copper Creek and Clinch River in Scott County, Virginia.

THE HERALD CITIZEN Cookeville, TN

A Cookeville man was transported by helicopter ambulance to Vanderbilt University Medical Center last night after he lost control of the vehicle he was driving and hit a tree.

Franklin Massey, 52, was injured in the accident, which happened around 7:30 last night on Buck Mountain Road.

According to Putnam County Sheriff's Deputy Greg Pauch, who responded to the scene along with Deputy Zach Maxwell, Massey was hurt when he lost control of the Chevy pick-up truck he was driving down the mountain toward Cookeville, near the intersection with Cove Road, and hit a tree head-on.

"The vehicle hit the tree with such force that its axle came off and the tool box in the bed was ejected," Deputy Pauch said.

The force of the impact also caused the vehicle to roll back away from the tree, but the driver's side door of the truck was jammed.

"The driver was found unconscious in the vehicle by responding emergency medical service personnel," the deputy continued.

Those responding EMS personnel had to extract Massey from the vehicle after they arrived on the scene, after which he was transported to Vanderbilt Hospital by helicopter ambulance.

Officials this morning say they have no word on his condition or the extent of his injuries.

"We were able to respond quickly because the 911 call came in very soon after the accident happened," Deputy Pauch said.

Prior to the accident, another driver approached Massey's vehicle when it was stopped in the middle of the road near Paleface Lane.

The driver of that vehicle reported to deputies that Massey's vehicle then "took off at a high rate of speed."

The other driver reported making visual contact with Massey's vehicle again on the descent down Buck Mountain Road, seeing the brake lights of Massey's vehicle and then seeing them disappear as the vehicle left the roadway.

At that time, the driver of the other vehicle called 911.

It is unknown if Massey was wearing his seatbelt at the time of the crash.

A check by deputies, however, revealed that Massey's driver's license was revoked for driving under the influence on July 1, 2014.

Two other DUI charges, one in Putnam and the other in Cumberland counties, was also reported on Massey's record.

"Mr. Massey had a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from his person, and two empty beer containers were found in the vehicle as well," Deputy Pauch said in a report of the incident.

Due to those extenuating circumstances, Deputy Pauch requested that medics perform a blood draw from Massey to check his blood alcohol level before he was put on the helicopter ambulance.

Two pending warrants were issued to be served on Massey at a later time.

They include a warrant for a third offense DUI and another for driving on a revoked license.

It won't happen all at once.

But over the next three years, Monterey citizens will be seeing an increase in their water rates.

"We've been discussing the possibility of having to raise rates in our water and sewer since last year," Amy Clark, chairperson of the water and sewer committee, told fellow aldermen in last week's board meeting as she presented the committee's recommendation.

"We have some major grants we're working toward, and this rate change will help (us) to compensate and pay our percentage. It'll also help with infrastructure repair, upkeep and maintenance. There's a whole lot we're doing in that department."

Four options, which were configured by Nathaniel Green of the consulting engineering firm James C. Hailey and Company, had been considered.

"We agreed on Option D, which is going to raise the rates a little bit over the next three years," Clark said.

Green then addressed the board, explaining that Monterey's current water rate inside the city is $12.70 for up to 2,000 gallons.

"As of 2015, that would go up $1.30 to $14," he said. "In 2016, that would go up $1.25 to $15.25."

By 2017, the rate would be $16.50.

For households going over 2,000 gallons, the rate is currently $3.67 per 1,000. But with the increases, rates would be as follows: $4 in 2015, $4.75 in 2016 and $5.50 in 2017.

Rates outside the city won't be going up as much, Green noted, due to those rates already being significantly higher than those inside the city.

"Your outside-city rate now stands at $24.09 for 2,000 gallons," he said. "In 2015, that'll go up to $24.25; in 2016, $24.75; and in 2017, $25. That'll be the minimum bill."

The current rate of $8.50 for those outside the city going over 2,000 gallons will remain the same.

Commercial rates, which are now $2.89, will go up to $3 this year, $3.25 in 2016 and $3.50 in 2017.

"I didn't change any of the minimum bills because you have four or five different commercial rates based on the size of the meter they have," Green said.

Sewer rates will go up to 105 percent.

"We had talked before about possibly raising the sewer rate to 120 percent of what the water is," Green said.

"Right now it's 100 percent... (But) because we're suggesting raising the water rates, you're not going to have to raise the sewer rates quite as much as you did before."

He anticipated the new rates would generate extra revenue for the city as follows: $8,000 to $10,000 in 2015, $17,000 to $23,000 in 2016 and $26,000 to $36,000 in 2017.

"That should really help you not only meet everything you need to with the loans you have, but leave quite a bit (for future projects)," Green said.

Duane Jarrett, Monterey's sewer and water quality manager, agreed.

"We're getting more flow to the plant," he said.

"We're close to capacity... We've got to start making money now so that four years down the road... we can start expansions."

Clark also pointed out that the city has not raised its water rates in some time and that those rates are lower than that of many neighboring towns.

"We know as a board that we have a lot of low-income families, and we are trying to keep that into consideration," she said. "That's probably why the bill hasn't been changed in so long."

"But with the expenses of trying to fix an infrastructure that's so old and the issues that have to be corrected, we're going to have to do something to offset those costs."

All aldermen except for Joey Isabell, who was absent, approved the rate increase.

A police check on a reportedly suspicious vehicle recently led to drug-related charges for two Cookeville men.

According to Officer Kyle Farley's report, officers went to Clover Avenue Saturday night in reference to a call about a suspicious vehicle in the parking lot of an apartment complex. Once there, they made contact with two males and one female inside a beige car.

"I asked if any of the subjects lived at this location and they all said no," says Farley's report.

An occupant identified as Corey Petroff of Blackburn Fork Road then told police his friend, Steven Jeffers of Cookeville Highway, was inside an apartment visiting another friend. After running warrant checks on those inside the vehicle, the officers found Petroff had outstanding warrants in Putnam and Overton counties and placed him under arrest.

Officers then made contact with Jeffers outside the apartment complex, and found he also had an outstanding warrant in Putnam County and placed him under arrest as well.

Officer Kenneth Frye searched Jeffers and allegedly found a plastic bag with 10 pills on the suspect, who said they were Percocet, according to the report.

After receiving permission to search the car, police located a wooden pipe with apparent marijuana residue inside. Petroff allegedly admitted the pipe belonged to him.

Both Petroff and Jeffers were transported to the county jail, where officers performed a search.

"...When Mr. Petroff removed his right sock, a small plastic bag fell out," says the report.

"I recovered the small bag and found three pieces of white bar style pills inside it. I asked Mr. Petroff what they were and he said Xanax. I reminded him that I told him if he had any other contraband on him he needed to tell me to avoid a greater charge, and he said that he hid it in his sock when I was walking up to the vehicle he was in."

Petroff was issued an arrest warrant for introduction of contraband into a penal institution, which he will appear in court for on April 6.

He was also cited with unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

Jeffers was cited with simple possession and has an April 27 general sessions court date for that charge.

A Bloomington Springs woman was arrested Monday after a Tennessee Highway Patrol trooper stopped her for a seatbelt violation and discovered various drugs in her possession.

Angela Sue Tindle, 42, of Martin Creek Road, was charged with possession of a controlled substance after the incident that happened yesterday on Highway 135.

THP Trooper Mark Miller initiated the traffic stop because he noticed the female driver of the vehicle was not wearing a seatbelt.

"[I] stopped a vehicle on Highway 135 for a seatbelt violation and identified the operator as this defendant," the trooper reports in the warrant for Tindle's arrest.

After making that stop, Trooper Miller said he discovered that Tindle had in her possession 16 Percocet pills, half a gram of methamphetamine and three small bags of marijuana.

"The individuals in the vehicle with her stated that she was selling drugs to them," the trooper reports in the warrant filed.

It does not specify further information about those individuals, such as who they were or how many passengers she had in the vehicle with her.

The warrant does, however, say that more baggies for packaging drugs was found in the vehicle.

Tindle was arrested and transported to the Putnam County Jail.

She has since been released on $10,000 bond.

Dawgs end season in regional game

The Clinton County Bulldogs finished its season Friday night at WKU's Diddle Arena in the first round of the 4th Region Tournament against Bowling Green, 58-47.

In a game where the outcome didn't depict the flow of the game, it was actually much closer than the final score indicated.

One good bounce here, one more rebound, one more three point shot made, and the Bulldogs are playing in the second round of the tournament.

However, the good bounce never came for the Dawgs and Clinton County ended it's season with an 18-12 record.

Bowling Green started off knocking down a three pointer in the first 15 seconds of the game to take an early lead.

Keifer Dalton made a jumper at the 7:28 mark to cut the lead to one. Bowling Green hit the front end of a one and one to put the Purples up by two, but another basket by Dalton tied the score at four all with 6:35 remaining in the period.

Bowling Green then put together an 8-1 run that lasted until the 1:29 mark to give the Purples a 14-5 lead. Dalton knocked down a jumper, followed by a basket by Ethan Smith to finish the first quarter trailing by five, 14-9.

During the second quarter, Clinton County's nerves seemed to settle down a bit and the flow of the game seemed to pickup somewhat from the first quarter.

Two free throws by Dalton cut the lead to three points, 14-11, but a 5-0 run by the Purples put Bowling Green up by eight points with 6:49 on the clock, 19-11.

Clinton County then scored seven straight to cut the lead to one point, but back-to-back baskets, including a three pointer by Bowling Green, extended its lead to six points with 2:39 remaining before halftime, 24-18.

The remainder of the half saw both teams scoring with the Purples leading the charge, 6-5 in the final two minutes for a 31-23 lead at the half.

The Bulldogs worked hard in the third period to try and chip away at the small lead acquired by the Purples in the first half.

Clinton County cut the lead to four points a couple of times, but Bowling Green always had an answer.

With 2:14 on the clock, Clinton County trailed by seven points, 40-33, and finished the quarter with a 3-0 run, to get to within four points after the third period, 40-36.

The Dawgs worked hard in the early stages of the fourth period and had Bowling Green on the ropes. During the first four minutes, Clinton County outscored the Purples 9-7 to cut the lead to two points, 47-45.

The score remained 47-45 for the next minute until Bowling

Senior Keifer Dalton drove the lane in the first half against Bowling Green in the first round of the 4th Region Tournament Friday night. Clinton County lost the game and finish with an 18-12 record on the year. Dalton finished his career at Clinton County with 21 points on the night.

Spring sports takes it outside

What many have called one of the worst winters in 20 years has led to the spring sports, baseball, softball and tennis, getting a late start on its seasons.

All three sports have had a difficult time getting time on its respective fields since official practice began on February 15.

While all three teams got field time Monday, rainy weather is expected all through this week, limiting time for all three teams outdoors.

TURNOVERS

BY

ALAN B. GIBSON

And then there were . . . 32

This is what we were working toward last December when we first turned on the gym lights and hooked the scoreboard up for that first game of the 2014-15 season - the start of the final two weeks and the event that every team had their sights set on.

The thing is, of course, more teams will be watching from the sidelines than lacing up the sneakers for the next two weeks as the girls first, then the boys next week, work through the field of 16 teams each to try and get to that final game and the chance to lay claim to that championship trophy - and the coveted championship banner that will hang from some gym.

For Clinton County, the run ended with a first round loss to the top team from the 14th District, the Bowling Green Purples.

Credit to our Dawgs and coaching staff, although the final score was an 11 point spread, with three minutes to play, Purples coach D.G. Sherrill wasn't showing a very confident look on his face as Clinton County trailed by just two with the chance to go ahead with just three minutes showing on the fourth quarter game clock.

Bowling Green held on to take the win, but a free throw here or rebound there and it could have been another thing all together.

Credit also to our co-16th District representative, the Lakers of Russell County, for taking their game straight to the other 14th District representative later that same night in Bowling Green.

Again, the 14th rep in that game, Warren Central, also survived for the win, but our two 16th teams certainly got their attention.

In closing out the boys' season, although ending in the post-season run is always a disappointing night, overall I'll have to say this was one of the best overall runs I can remember, mainly because of the group of young men, and especially those senior members, who were wearing those blue and white uniforms.

Guys, thanks for a great experience, and thanks for representing your community and school in such a way that made all of us who followed and supported you so proud.

Congrats to Ansley and Keifer

Word came last week at the conclusion of the 16th District Tournament that two of our players were honored with invitations to participate in the Kentucky Association of Basketball Coaches East-West All -Star games.

Seniors Ansley Stalcup and Keifer Dalton, were both second place vote getters in the Player of the Year voting on the KABC ballots, and by virtue of that accomplishment, both were selected to be included on the All-Star teams to represent the 4th Region.

Both will be on the west team roster. The girls' game is at Warren Central this Saturday at 2:00 central and the boys' game is at Transy on the 21st at 1:00 central.

Leftovers

Now that Clinton County has put up the round-balls for another few months, there are always a few items that are stuck around my computer front on post-its (stickies) that need to be cleaned up. This year there are a couple.

Kudos to the four teams in the 16th District and especially to Metcalfe County for coming together to do everything they could for the student athlete and allowing them to be properly, or at least as properly as was possible all things considered, for a senior night recognition.

Three of our four schools, Clinton, Cumberland and Russell, all had Senior Night recognition ceremonies cancelled due to the heavy snows that wreaked havoc with the final week of regular season games.

To replace those lost opportunities, the schools were able to properly recognize their seniors prior to the first game of 16th District competition at Metcalfe County.

Nice touch.

Great effort, no cooperation from Mother Nature

Kudos again to our own C.C.H.S. Athletic Director, Mike Beard, in making every effort to get things ready for a possible makeup game with Barren County.

Mike went the extra mile in an effort to get the C.C.H.S. parking lot usable by the public by hiring outside crews to clear parking spots just in case there had been enough melting to reschedule the snowed out game with Barren County.

His hopes, and even his own shoveling efforts around many of the walkways, were all in an effort not so much to get the basketball game in, but in an effort to be able to give our seniors their Senior Night ceremony on our home floor.

A lack of cooperation from Mother Nature forced the game to be cancelled on attempts for both a Friday night and Saturday night rescheduling that week, but his efforts to do everything he could for our athletes were certainly commendable.

Now on to the games, and this week's girls' Sweet 16 in Bowling Green (the last to be held there for awhile), and next week's Sweet 16 in Lexington.

Throw up the rock and let's crown a couple of champions.

SEC Tournament ... those who matter, enjoy every moment, Fans

Pre-dance reflections before Big Dance begins.

Alas, John Calipari ignored another Mark Twain classic last week. Never miss a good chance to shut up.

Kentucky coach doesn't like being bothered with the SEC Tournament. He would skip it and "get on to the next tournament."

The impetuous rush to such fans-don't-matter lame-brainery brought to mind an old Yiddish proverb: "Man makes plans, God laughs."

Suggestion for ball coach and rubber stampers for his logic: Step back boys and girls, take a breath, consult the national weather service for latest asteroid collision odds, check your blood pressure and pulse, and lighten up. By time you get your results, the next ball tournament might be in the twilight zone.

Reflections.

1. An SEC Tournament without Kentucky would be ... like a Voice without Dick Vitale ... President Obama without the Mob. Besides, SEC football and teevee network need the money.

2. SEC Tournament ... those who matter, enjoy every moment, Fans.

3. Florida coach Billy knows: "When you look at a team, so much of the team is based on chemistry, how connected they are, how they play for each other, share the ball, all those kinds of things."

Says everything team, doesn't it?

4. As certain as crocus and spring forward the clocks in March, poets, songsters and nicknamers are abloom about the Wildcats. An obvious theme tune: We Will Rock You and We Are the Champion! The grammar mix from rock group Queen works too. We (plural) are the Champion (singular). Perfect.

5. 28 million, 851 thousand, 955. Number of YouTube hits for We Will Rock You.

6. Statistic mostly ignored. Kentucky's bench outscored Florida's 46-13 in regular season finale marked 31st time this season UK won bench points.

7. 929 consecutive games with a made 3-pointer by Kentucky dates back almost to days when fans were naming their kids Kyle.

8. Murray State did what! Won 27 games, 16-0 in OVC, climbed to No. 25 in polls, then lost the OVC's automatic bid to The Dance. The cha-ching sound in Murray Monday was an accountant calculating how much money the school loses unless Steve Prohm's team gets an at-large bid.

9. Louisville did what! Knocked Virginia off a one-seed line?

10. Hero Who Dept: UofL sophomore Mangok Mathiang rainbowed in a game winning 15-foot swisher with 2.7 left ... his only shot of the game and first field goal in five weeks.

11. Newspaper headline in Lexington: Is SEC tourney superfluous to UK?

A living, breathing organism, is this tournament. Pinnacle entertainment for fans. To inject the word superfluous smacks as cheap five-syllable arrogance.

12. Cities in the south bid smartly for the SEC carnival and site of Big Blue Nation's annual convention. Fans care enough to take off work, pay top dollar for tickets, hotel rental, eateries and entertainment.

13. Parallel universe, media types who disparage the tournament are same boys and girls who take up lodgings paid for by employers, occupy first four-five rows at the arena free, dine on the SEC's hospitality dime, and privileged to pen prose, share bad jokes and take a nap.

14. Rumor: Duke University's athletics department still riding out the media storm from alleged sexual assault involving ex-player Rasheed Sulaimon, sent a thank you note to Syracuse University's athletics department.

15. Jim Boeheim ... say it ain't so, Jimbo.

Another rich ball coach stopped paying attention.

NCAA's Committee on Infractions report: 2001-2009, Syracuse did not follow its written drug policy.; academic misconduct; extra benefits and impermissible booster activity.

16. Calipari connection. Boeheim is embarrassed, but safe. His "I didn't know therefore I am not responsible," defense worked for John Calipari twice.

Sanctions? No Boeheim on sideline for nine ACC games next year, forfeit 12 scholarships over four years, vacate 108 coaching wins five years probation.

17. Money. Attendance records at Syracuse are second only to Kentucky, Carrierdome profits move the school's highest paid employee Boeheim to say "I'm not going anywhere." Translation: Too big to fail.

18. No Big Dance for Syracuse means time for Boeheim's lawyers to spin this away. A clandestine call to Dick Vitale ought to set in motion the PR rehab. Wait for, "Bum wrap for Jim, bay-bee,"

Couple 20-win seasons, this hubbub will be forgotten. Syracuse will retire a jersey with Boeheim's name on it and he can resume being Hall of Fame famous.

Sound familiar?

America, I love this place!

19. Tee-shirts. 31-0 Not Done. Did you buy one of those?

20. ACC Tournament team nobody wants to play is Duke, right? Pencil in North Carolina State.

21. "Every game seems to be an event," Calipari said last week. Leaves us to wonder, you've been around here how long?

22. UK Fan 1: "When they come out I'm gonna get me one of those 40-0 tee-shirts." UK Fan 2: "What if Kentucky finishes, say 37-1?" UK fan 1: "Whaaaa... 37 and 1? Why, that would be a disaster!"

23. Worth Repeating Dept. E-mail from Mike Giorgio in Bowling Green following Kentucky's win on Georgia's Senior Night.

"Did you notice a couple of Kentucky players clapping FOR the Georgia Seniors as they walked off the court with nine seconds to go? That was a hell of a display of kindness to stand there and applaud those guys. That's some class. I think these are the best young kids Kentucky has had in decades, clean kids with hearts."

24. Having read about Kentucky's Fabulous Five and Terrible Trio, having watched the Fiddlers, Runts, Unforgettables and Anthony Davis, my ballot is cast. Best team in Kentucky basketball history is this one, 2014-15. And so it goes.

February term of Circuit Court sees heavy docket

A term of Clinton Circuit Court saw a heavy docket on February 12, 2015 with Circuit Judge David L. Williams presiding.

A pretrial conference was held in the case of Commonwealth vs. Andrea Byler, who is charged with murder in connection with the 2014 death of Jimmy Sidwell, Jr. She is also charged with first degree robbery and two counts of tampering with physical evidence.

A co-defendant in the case, Michael E. Thompson, has already entered a guilty plea in the case and accepted a total term of 35 years in prison.

During the court date last month, the court granted the Commonwealth's motion for examination of the defendant and also denied a defense motion to lower the defendant's bond. A pretrial conference in the case was scheduled for April 9.

Several defendants, including many who were charged in a recent drug-related investigation, were in court as well last month for arraignment purposes.

The following are cases in which some type of resolutions were reached, including sentencing and pleas, as well as trial dates being set, along with other proceedings.

* Sentencing was held in the case of Commonwealth vs. David Bryan Brown pursuant to a plea agreement reached on January 8.

The defendant pled guilty to theft by unlawful taking or disposition over $500 (four counts) with a sentence of five years on each count imposed to run concurrent and guilty to burglary third degree with a five year sentence. The two will run consecutive for 10 years. The defendant will serve nine months in jail with the balance probated for five years with supervision and receive credit for any jail time served.

* During a pretrial conference, sentencing was held in the case of Commonwealth vs. Christopher Charles Caruthers, pursuant to an agreement reached on January 8.

The defendant pled guilty to possession of a forged instrument (two counts) with a sentence of two years on each count to run concurrent for two years but consecutive with another case in Clinton Circuit Court. The defendant was ordered to serve the balance of the two-year sentence and receive credit for time served.

Charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and two counts of persistent felony offender were dismissed.

* Sentencing was held in the case of Commonwealth vs. Jesse Phillips, pursuant to an agreement reached on January 28.

The defendant pled guilty to unlawful taking or disposition more than $500 but less than $10,000 (two counts) with a sentence of five years on each count to run concurrent for five years. The defendant shall serve 135 days in jail with the balance probated for five years with supervision. He will receive credit for time served.

Charges of third degree burglary and criminal mischief first degree were dismissed.

* During a pretrial conference, a plea agreement was reached in the case of Commonwealth vs. Justin Joe Daley.

Upon a plea of guilty to receiving stolen property (firearm), the defendant shall receive a sentence of two years. He will serve 45 days in jail with the balance pretrial diverted for five years with supervision and will pay restitution, jointly and severally with a co-defendant, of $1,000.

* During a hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Gloria Brumley, charged with second degree trafficking in a controlled substance, first offense, the defendant acknowledged violating terms and conditions of probation, which was revoked and she will receive credit for any time served.

* During a revocation hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Garrett Gene Gabbard, charged with flagrant nonsupport, in lieu of revocation the court found the defendant to be in contempt of court and sentenced him to 30 days in jail.

* During motion hour in the case of Commonwealth vs. Jimmy K. Simmons, charged with multiple counts of theft by failure to make required disposition, the trial scheduled for February 16-17 was continued with a pretrial conference scheduled for July 9.

* During a pretrial conference in the case of Commonwealth vs. Tarina R. Whited, charged with theft by unlawful taking controlled substance, under $10,000, the trial scheduled for February 24 was continued with a pretrial conference rescheduled.

* During a hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. Jennifer Lynn Crabtree, originally charged with abuse of a public trust over $10,000 but less than $100,000, the matter was dismissed/diverted.

* During a review in the case of Commonwealth vs. David Vitatoe, charged with flagrant nonsupport, the defendant did not appear and a warrant of arrest was issued.

* During arraignment in the case of Commonwealth vs. Jonathan Stuber, charged with possession of a controlled substance second degree (two counts), trafficking first degree, et al, the defendant entered a not guilty plea and was to have entered a plea and been sentenced on March 5.

(Note: The Clinton Circuit Court session that had been scheduled for last Thursday, March 5 was postponed due to inclement weather and rescheduled for next Monday, March 16.)

The following individuals were arraigned with pretrial conference and trial dates being scheduled:

* Marsha Ann Wright, theft or disposition of a controlled substance under $10,000, possession of marijuana, tampering with physical evidence, promoting contraband and three counts, persistent felony offender. Pretrial conference scheduled for April 9 with a trial date set for June 3.

* Lloyd Smith, trafficking in a controlled substance second degree, second or subsequent offense and trafficking first degree, first offense. Pretrial conference was scheduled for March 5 (postponed) with a trial date of May 19.

* Sherry Redman, trafficking in a controlled substance first degree, first offense. Pretrial conference May 14, trial date July 8.

* William Russell Perdue, manufacturing methamphetamine first offense and persistent felony offender second degree. Pretrial conference scheduled for March 5 (postponed) with a trial date set for April 1.

* Harold Wayne Parrigin, opiates first degree, first offense (two counts) and two counts persistent felony offender first degree. Pretrial conference April 9, trial date scheduled for July 8.

* Brian K. Marcum, trafficking in a controlled substance first degree, first offense (two counts) and two counts of second degree persistent felony offender. Pretrial conference April 9, trial date July 8.

* Brandy Lee Pitmann, trafficking in a controlled substance first degree, first offense. Pretrial conference April 9, trial date July 8.

* Willie Dyer, trafficking in a controlled substance first degree, first offense (two counts) and two counts of persistent felony offender second degree. Pretrial conference March 5 (postponed) with a trial date of April 14.

* Johnny M. Beaty, cultivation of five or more plants of marijuana, first offense and persistent felony offender second degree. Pretrial conference April 9, trial date set for June 24.

* Janet L. Ballew, trafficking in a controlled substance second degree, first offense and persistent felony offender second degree. Pretrial conference March 5 (postponed), trial date May 19.

* George H. Butler, Jr., trafficking in a controlled substance first degree, first offense and second degree persistent felony offender. Pretrial conference May 5 (postponed), trial date June 24.

* Jason Craig, trafficking in a controlled substance second degree, first offense and persistent felony offender first degree. Pretrial conference March 5 (postponed), trial date June 24.

County

Judge-Executive Richard Armstrong noted that County Treasurer Dallas Sidwell had proposed that funding for the project could come from LGEA (Local Government Economic Assistance) funds, which would mean no interest to be paid by the Wellness Center, with that organization to repay the county at a monthly rate directly to the county.

Following some discussion, it was estimated that between $25,000 and $30,000 would cover all costs, including the unit, installation and assorted plumbing work, etc.

Roger Barber, representing the Wellness Center, said two proposals had been obtained. He said the money would be keeping up the investment in what the county already owns and noted the number of people in the county that use the pool.

Magistrate Craig said the county should have the county attorney to draft something to put into the monthly claims and bills to make sure the monthly debt—which was basically agreed to be a minimum of $600 per month—be put in each month's claims and bills.

County Attorney Michael Rains also advised that since the total cost of the project would exceed the state minimum of $20,000, the project should be let for bids, and once approved, the LGEA funds could be used to pay for it with Wellness Center board to repay the county in monthly installments.

A motion to advertise the project for bids was passed on a 5-1 vote with Magistrate Riddle voting no.

* Backhoe Purchase: Citing the need for upgraded road department equipment and the fact the road fund had a surplus of $700,000 (counting the 2015 state Rural Road Aid allotment), Judge Armstrong recommended the purchase of a new backhoe. He said the current 1996 model is about worn out and said the backhoe is probably the most used piece of road department equipment used year-round.

Armstrong had obtained estimates on two models, saying a 2015 CAT model with a four-in-one bucket and accessories and warranty, including power train warranty, was the best of the two proposals, at a cost of $92,685 at state contract price.

Magistrate Craig said he felt a truck with a blade, possibly a smaller vehicle that could maneuver on narrower roads, was needed first.

Armstrong countered that "98 percent of the time it doesn't snow" in the county, but the backhoe is used for multiple purposes. He did agree, however, that such a truck was needed and said he would get some prices prior to the court's next regular meeting and the county may be able to purchase both pieces of equipment this year.

Magistrate Buster made a motion to purchase the backhoe, which passed by unanimous vote.

* Other business: The court voted to pay claims and bills and Director of Emergency Services Lonnie Scott told the court the new ambulance was ready to be picked up. Some $70,000 of the total $91,000 purchase price came from grants.

The court voted to approve both claims and bills and fund transfers.

The next regular meeting of Clinton Fiscal Court is scheduled for Thursday, March 19 at 5 p.m. and is open to the general public.

The Clinton County Courthouse will be show casing the Clinton County High School art student's work in the courthouse for the month of March. The display includes paper collages, landscape, non-objective, still life, cartoon drawings, abstract portraits, portraits of people and animals and homemade paper pulp. Students are under the direction of art teacher Pam Miniard.

LCCAA Needs Assessment

Lake Cumberland Community Action Agency, Inc. will be having their semi-annual community meeting for the purpose of conducting Needs Assessment Surveys. This meeting will be held Friday, March 20 at 10 a.m. at the Community Center.

Local residents are asked to participate in the annual needs assessment and to share past success stories. LCCAA sponsors the event annually so that the entire community can join in conversation about the realities of living in poverty and how individuals, families, and communities can become more self-sufficient. It is also an opportunity to make the public aware of the array of programs and services provided by the local Community Action office.

Community Action changes lives, embodies the spirit of hope, and improves communities. LCCAA is one of a network of nearly 1,000 community based nonprofit public organizations throughout the United States originally established in 1964 to fight America’s War on Poverty.

For more information please contact Tammy Garrett, Outreach Specialist for Clinton County at 387-5880, or Alicia Polston, CPA, Executive Director at 270-343-4600.

This project is funded in part, under a contract with the Cabinet with funds from Community Services Block Grant of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The Recording Industry Association of America awards first Gold Record to Perry Como

March 14, 1958

For as long as most people have been buying popular music on records, tapes and compact disks, the records, tapes and disks they’ve bought have carried labels like “Certified Gold!” and “Double Platinum!” Those labels have been in use since the early days of the rock-and-roll era, when a young trade organization called the Recording Industry Association of America (RIAA) created and trademarked its precious-metals-based scale for measuring music sales. On March 14, 1958, the RIAA awarded its first official Gold Record to Perry Como for his smash-hit single “Catch A Falling Star.”

Those who have been conditioned to believe that rock and roll wiped out everything in its path on its way toward dominating late-20th-century pop music may be surprised to hear that Perry Como was such a viable commercial artist a full two years after the arrival of Elvis Presley. Como, a 50-something hold-over in a cozy cardigan sweater, stood for everything that youthful rock and roll did not, after all. Where rock and roll promised sex, excitement and social change, Como’s act evoked much more staid pursuits. It is certainly worth noting, however, that the RIAA waited until Elvis Presley’s string of pre-Army hits was over before codifying what was formerly a loose, PR-driven process and creating an objective standard (500,000 sales) for the Gold Record. After the first Gold Record was awarded to Perry Como for “Catch A Falling Star,” the RIAA’s next honoree was Laurie London for “He’s Got the Whole World In His Hands.” And while Elvis Presley was the third artist to receive such an honor (for “Hard Headed Woman” in August 1958), his single Gold Record through the end of 1961 had him tied on the RIAA’s list with Lawrence Welk (whose “Calcutta” was certified Gold in February 1961).

Czar Nicholas II abdicates

March 15, 1917

During the February Revolution, Czar Nicholas II, ruler of Russia since 1894, was forced to abdicate the throne by the Petrograd insurgents, and a provincial government was installed in his place. Crowned on May 26, 1894, Nicholas was neither trained nor inclined to rule, which did not help the autocracy he sought to preserve in an era desperate for change. The disastrous outcome of the Russo-Japanese War led to the Russian Revolution of 1905, which the czar diffused only after signing a manifesto promising representative government and basic civil liberties in Russia. However, Nicholas soon retracted most of these concessions, and the Bolsheviks and other revolutionary groups won wide support. In 1914, Nicholas led his country into another costly war, and discontent in Russia grew as food became scarce, soldiers became war-weary, and devastating defeats on the eastern front demonstrated the czar’s ineffectual leadership.

Nicholas is generally considered to have been incompetent at the colossal task of ruling the enormous Russian Empire. Historian Barbara Tuchman gives a damning evaluation of his reign: [The Russian Empire] was ruled from the top by a sovereign who had but one idea of government—to preserve intact the absolute monarchy bequeathed to him by his father—and who, lacking the intellect, energy or training for his job, fell back on personal favorites, whim, simple mulishness, and other devices of the empty-headed autocrat. His father, Alexander III, who deliberately intended to keep his son uneducated in statecraft until the age of thirty, unfortunately miscalculated his own life expectancy, and died when Nicholas was twenty-six. The new Tsar had learned nothing in the interval, and the impression of imperturbability he conveyed was in reality apathy—the indifference of a mind so shallow as to be all surface. When a telegram was brought to him announcing the annihilation of the Russian fleet at Tsushima, he read it, stuffed it in his pocket, and went on playing tennis.

In March 1917, the army garrison at Petrograd joined striking workers in demanding socialist reforms, and Czar Nicholas II was forced to abdicate. Nicholas and his family were first held at the Czar-skoye Selo palace, then in the Yekaterinburg palace near Tobolsk.

In July 1918, the advance of counterrevolutionary forces caused the Yekaterinburg Soviet forces to fear that Nicholas might be rescued. After a secret meeting, a death sentence was passed on the Imperial family, and Nicholas, his wife, Alexandra, his children, Anastasia, Tatiana, Olga, Maria, and the heir, Alexei, and several of their servants were gunned down on the night of July 17, 1918.

Questioning history...

What happened to the “Lost Colony” of Roanoke?

The origins of one of the America’s oldest unsolved mysteries can be traced to August 1587, when a group of about 115 English settlers arrived on Roanoke Island, off the coast of what is now North Carolina. Later that year, it was decided that John White, governor of the new colony, would sail back to England in order to gather a fresh load of supplies. But just as he arrived, a major naval war broke out between England and Spain, and Queen Elizabeth I called on every available ship to confront the mighty Spanish Armada. In August 1590, White finally returned to Roanoke, where he had left his wife and daughter, his infant granddaughter (Virginia Dare, the first English child born in the Americas) and the other settlers three long years before. He found no trace of the colony or its inhabitants, and few clues to what might have happened, apart from a single word—“Croatoan”—carved into a wooden post.

Investigations into the fate of the “Lost Colony” of Roanoke have continued over the centuries, but no one has come up with a satisfactory answer. “Croatoan” was the name of an island south of Roanoke that was home to a Native American tribe of the same name. Perhaps, then, the colonists were killed or abducted by Native Americans. Other hypotheses hold that they tried to sail back to England on their own and got lost at sea, that they met a bloody end at the hands of Spaniards who had marched up from Florida or that they moved further inland and were absorbed into a friendly tribe. In 2007, efforts began to collect and analyze DNA from local families to figure out if they’re related to the Roanoke settlers, local Native American tribes or both. Despite the lingering mystery, it seems there’s one thing to be thankful for: The lessons learned at Roanoke may have helped the next group of English settlers, who would found their own colony 17 years later just a short distance to the north, at Jamestown.

Bulldogs win 20th District, prepare for regional

The Bulldogs defeated Metcalfe County on the Hornets’ home floor to win the 20th District Tournament. On the road to that final game, CCHS defeated Burkesville, 42-36, and Gamaliel, 61-43. CCHS defeated Metcalfe County 54-46 to take the championship. Named to the All-Tournament Team were Bob Reneau and Bill Perdue.

With 18 inches of snow in Bowling Green Wednesday and still falling, the 5th Regional Tournament scheduled to begin Wednesday night has been postponed until 2 p.m Thursday. If the roads can be cleared by that time, Clinton County will play in the second game at 3:30 p.m.

Coach Castle’s Bulldogs of Clinton County High School, 1960 20th District Champions, play Adairville Thursday at 3:30 p.m. If they win, they will play the winner of the Richardsville-Russellville game on Friday at 7:00 p.m. The championship game will be played Saturday at 8:00 p.m.

Big snow paralyzes activities in Clinton County

Another big snow, dwarfing the eight and 10 inch ones here the past three weeks, fell Tuesday night. Snow was still falling Wednesday with a depth at 10 a.m. of more than 12 inches. This brings the total snowfall in the county this year to near 40 inches.

None of the schools in town or county were open Wednesday and most meetings scheduled for Thursday and Friday have been cancelled. Business in Albany Wednesday morning was almost at a standstill, with only those cars with chains or snow tires able to move.

The state highway department is busy clearing the main highways, but secondary highways are practically impassable.

About the only activity in town Wednesday morning was the shoveling of snow from the sidewalks, scraping the streets, and removing snow from awnings. Most of Kentucky and Tennessee is covered in snow.
